

Delivery Note

So far, you used to receive your delivery note together with the goods. You will most probably enter this delivery note into your ERP and mark the individual positions as delivered. Then you will archive the delivery note.

nexMart now offers you a digital delivery note. You will receive this delivery note even before the goods arrive at your goods received.

What are your benefits?

Imagine that you will no longer have to capture this delivery manually. You will not have to enter any actually delivered quantities, and no missing items either. All you have to do is check whether the goods mentioned on the delivery note correspond to the actually delivered quantities—everything else happens automatically.

This "e-DeliveryNote" doesn't replace a printed delivery note. And it is not supposed to, as you will need the printed document for the matching process.

If you only receive a few orders a day, you will benefit only minimally from this improvement. But if you don't, then you should certainly consider this option. It will surely pay off just to think about it.

Just contact us; we will support you with integrating digital delivery notes with your ERP.

Should you, as do many others, be interested in integrating digital delivery notes, you will find more documentation on formats in the Downloads section.
